

In two separate groups on October 8th and 11th 2007 the Geography Department took 43 Year 10 Geographers to the River Darent in Kent. We spent the day investigating river processes and the impact of people on the River Darent, Kent. We visited three sites; Shoreham, Lullingstone and Eynsford, where we took width, depth and velocity readings. The girls also completed some excellent field sketches. We had great weather on both days and the girls worked very well in their groups.
