

During the first week of the Easter 2006 holidays the Year 12 and 13 Geographers spent 5 days in South Wales; examining a wide range of geographical themes, patterns and processes. For example, we investigated rurality in the Gower Peninsula, the impact of people on the Oxwich sand dunes, and the management of the River Ilston.

Mining the Big Pitt!

Enjoying the sun at Rossili

Oxwich sand dunes

Taking a break in Swansea!

---